

Bob Maslowski, PhD

has agreed to return to La Paix for the fourth consecutive year to conduct a wood and garden walk to discover wild edible mushrooms in La Paix's fields and forest.

Moss found growing in La Paix's woods.

Wild mullein growing in gardens at La Paix. Mullein was brought over from England by immigrants.

Bill Hale standing beneath large rock formation in La Paix's woods.

I believe this is Jack O'Lantern mushroom - extremely poisonous - growing in La Paix's woods - usually at the base of trees.

The woods of La Paix.

Diane English, Paul Goland and Mark English check out Chicken of the Woods. It was delicious later when Mark made a sauteed dish of it and other delectable edible wild mushrooms.

Golden Chanterelle Mushrooms found in La Paix's woods - especially good to eat - but you need to be an expert to tell the difference between this and the one above. Beware!!!!

Photos above: Discovering a large chicken of the woods mushroom on the mushroom walk given by Paul Goland of Hardscrabble Enterprises, mushroom expert. Found between two oak trees.